DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bowcutt et al. '787.

Bowcutt et al teach a gas gun launched projectile having a nose being substantially flat, when tip 101 is removed (adjacent element T, see Figure 1). A body 100 contains an explosive charge 150 or fuel, and a tail having a plurality of transversely oriented fins to control the trajectory of the projectile. The gun barrel (not shown) from which the body is launched constitutes a tube for launching the projectile. Regarding claim 2, the use a striker and primer separated by a spring member, it well-known and thus deemed to be obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made. As for claims 3-5, Bowcutt et al teach the use of a pusher plate the sealing of gases to launch the projectile. As for claim 8, the use of a transmitter/receiver within the tube allows the device to determine if and when the projectile has exited the launch tube, as a result, the use of such is believed to be obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made.

Conclusion

Summary: Claims 1-8 have been rejected.
